Bowen Lodge, K. of P., Celebrates Nineteenth Anniversary
—Activity of Baptist Sunday School—Charley Clancy
Proves a Successful Manager—North Stonington Justice
Holds Mrs. Levi Herschorn in $500 Bonds.

That Rev. A. B. Crisley, head of the Rhode Island Anti-Slavery League, has not the unanimous support of the pastors of the Baptist church, was demonstrated at the closing session of the convention of the Massachusetts Baptist association at Allentown, N. J. A resolution endorsing the league and recommending financial support was passed, but not until Rev. C. H. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church of Worcester, spoke in opposition to the league's claims. He said he was not in sympathy with Rev. A. B. Crisley and did not want him to visit his church.

The next convention will be held at Quinebaug and Rev. J. W. Ford, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist church of Worcester, was chosen preacher of the annual session, with Rev. Brown H. Smith of Allentown, as alternate.

Dr. Arthur B. Briggs of Ashaway, president of the Rhode Island Medical society, presided at the fall meeting of the medical staff of the hospital, which, upon invitation of the board of state charities and correction, was held at the state hospital at Howard. There were 122 members present. Several cases of pellagra were presented by the medical staff of the hospital. Pellagra is a disease which in recent years has been prevalent in southern and southwestern parts of the United States, and which at present appears to be creeping into New England.

Besides the inspection of the group of buildings, the visitors enjoyed a baseball game between teams representing the Eastern hospital and the state institution, members of the hospital staffs and patients participating in the contest, which was won by the Eastern team. At noon the hospital dining room was visited, where the doctors witnessed the method of serving the food to the 500 patients. Then they made thorough inspection of the entire institution and realized the need of better provisions for the care of the insane.

The members of Bowen lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Westerly, served the nineteenth anniversary of the organization of the lodge with a big feast at the Larkin shore dinner house at Watch Hill, Thursday night. Making the trip by special trolley car. There were eighty-five knights at the feast, which was enlivened by after-dinner speeches and vocal music.

Supreme Representative Phillips, Boston; Representative Briggs of Massachusetts were the guests of honor, and among the speakers.

Henry Robinson Palmer of Stonington, who has been connected with the editorial department of the Providence Journal for the past 22 years, or thereabouts, after his graduation from Brown university, is now in charge of the editorial page of the Providence Journal, the evening newspaper published by the Providence Journal company. His long service on the Journal is testimony of his ability and the promotion is pleasing to Mr. Palmer, as all day work will be much more congenial and not so disturbing to his home life, which he retains in Stonington borough.

Mr. Palmer is not only a thorough newspaper man, but is proficient in literature. He has been editor of Brown Alumni Monthly for several years, magazine published by Brown university in Providence.

There was no summer vacation for the First Baptist church Sunday school, and the attendance has been up to the standard during the summer. In July and August there were thirty-three visitors to the school registered, representing the states of Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and one from England. These visitors are specially interested in Baptist Sunday schools and each made a short talk on the Sunday school work as conducted in their home towns.

This church has adopted the individual cups at communion service, as a sanitary measure, and as a further sanitary movement, class No. 11, Miss Daisy M. Kenyon teacher, has supplied a bubbling drinking fountain for the accommodation of members of the Sunday school.

Charley Clancy of Westerly, manager of the Winston-Salem Baseball club, is expected home Monday, the southern league season having closed.

The Charleston Observer had this complimentary notice of local interest: "Charley Clancy, who has managed the Winston-Salem team for the first two seasons, has demonstrated that he is one of the most capable minor league managers in the country. He has been unusually successful in keeping his club in the running, and more than that, he has shown even greater ability in taking very ordinary players and whipping them into pennant winning shape. For two years Clancy managed the Payetteville team in the Eastern Carolina league, and both seasons won the pennant. He took the reins of Winston-Salem in 1911, his third year in Carolina baseball, and again won the pennant. This season his team finished second and within three games of the leaders. An exceedingly poor start is responsible for the fact that he did not again top the league in view of the spirited spurt the Twins took during the last half of the season's play."

The Twins were not to have been a very formidable club but for the fact that Charley Clancy was manager. The men were not stars; they were being in the second class, but Clancy made them play just the sort of ball that wins. He took chances. He was not afraid to take a lead. This was in the early stages of the game, both of pitchers and pinch batmen. If an occasion came up when the service of some specific man was needed, that is the kind of baseball that wins. It is not the same old stereotyped style of play that gets away with victories these days. Baseball has developed into an acute science and it has come to demand of those in charge that they take these chances, advantage themselves upon the chances of tactical substitutions and play contrary to the expectations of the opposition.

"For the success Clancy has achieved in the two years of his managerial office in the Carolina league, we are inclined to extend that amount of commendation that he deserves. He is a mighty good manager."

Local Laconics.

The members of the Fifth company, Western, coast artillery corps, were at rifle practice at the state range Friday.

James Jennings of Bristol, a student at St. Thomas Seminary, Hartford, is the guest of Cyril Higgins in Westerly.

Joseph A. Cloran has sold a building lot at Bradford to Pasquale Rucello, and another to his brother Michael.

G. Henry Mahan has sold to the Kenneth Hilditch company the property on Watch Hill, formerly owned by Daniel J. Sully.

The Fort Wright baseball team and the team representing the New England granite works, will play a game on Vose grounds this (Saturday) afternoon.

No criminal business was transacted at the regular session of the Third district court, and the civil cases entered were relative to disputed book accounts.

Rev. John M. Collins will supply the pulpit of the First Baptist church in the morning, and in the evening Rev. P. E. Hillister of North Stonington will conduct the service.

Mrs. Lena Herschorn of New York was arraigned before Justice Charles E. Chapman, accused of stealing diamond earrings valued at $200 from Mrs. Fosterman of North Stonington. She pleaded not guilty, but, after hearing testimony, Justice Chapman found probable cause for holding her for trial before the superior court. Bond was fixed at $500.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Perry, Miss Harriet N. Woodward, Miss Mary A. Pendleton and Miss Anna Pendleton returned from a European trip. Soon after their arrival home, Mr. Perry, who is superintendent of Stonington schools, received a telegram that his father was in a dying condition at his home near Troy, N. Y., and immediately left for Troy. In his absence, Principal Sibley of the high school will act as superintendent.

The Turkish Bath in Lapland.

There is a widespread use of the vapor, or Turkish bath. Even in arctic Lapland the use of a Turkish bath is very primitive form is common. It consists of a hut attached to every farm. In the middle of the hut is raised a kind of beehive of rough stones, and in this a fire is lighted. When the stones become red-hot they are drenched with water, so that the place is filled with vapor. Then enter the bathers, who are armed with birch twigs, with which they belabor each other until all are in a state of profuse perspiration. Then all leave the hut and roll in the snow outside. This last function, it will be observed, is equivalent to the cold plunge which is the final experience in the Turkish bath as known to us.
